10 Data Integrity & Security Of Your Information

Sirius takes all reasonable steps to ensure that the personal information collected from you is reliable for its intended use, accurate, complete, and current.

We use appropriate technical, administrative, and physical safeguards to protect your personal information from loss, misuse, or alteration. In addition, we take steps to ensure that our safeguards take into account new known threats. Of course, no organization can guarantee the absolute security of personally identifiable information. You should keep in mind that internet transmissions, particularly email transmissions, are never 100% secure or error-free. Accordingly, we also caution you to guard your own computer and password against unauthorized access by others.

Any detected breach of data security (accidental or unlawful access, disclosure or misuse of personal information) shall be reported without undue delay.

11 Transfer Of Your Information

We protect personal information entrusted to us no matter what country it is stored or transferred to – as described above in 'Data Integrity & Security Of Your Information'.

At times (e.g. when Sirius shares clinical trial data with trusted Data Processors), we may be required to transfer personal information to countries other than the country where the information was provided. If you are based in the EU/EEA/UK in such instance, the transfer will be based on safeguards that allow us to conduct the transfer in accordance with the Data Protection Legislation - such as specific contracts containing standard data protection clauses approved by the European Commission or Information Commissioner's Office 'ICO' (as relevant). You can obtain a copy of this documentation by contacting the EU Representative or DPO identified in the "Contact Us" section below.

12 Your Rights

Depending on your country/jurisdiction, by law you may have the right to:

- request a copy of your personal information which Sirius holds about you.
- be informed about the collection and use of your personal information. We ensure we do this with our Privacy Notices (including this document). These are regularly reviewed and updated to ensure they accurately reflect our processing activities.
- request that Sirius correct any personal information if it is found to be inaccurate or out of date;
- request your personal information be erased where it is no longer necessary for Sirius to retain such data;
- withdraw your consent to the processing of personal information to which you earlier provided consent for processing;
- request that Sirius provides you with an export of your personal information and where possible, to transmit that data directly to another data controller (known as the right to data portability);
- where there is a dispute in relation to the accuracy or processing of your personal information, to request a restriction be placed on further processing;
- object to the processing of personal information (where applicable); and
- lodge a complaint with a data supervisory authority.

You can contact us at any time via the ways provided in "Contact Us" below.

For security reasons, you may need to submit a written request or prove your identity in other ways. We may ask you to verify your identity first before processing your request. If you are not satisfied with the reply, you can also make a complaint to us via the ways provided in "Contact Us".

We will not be able to respond to your request under the following circumstances:

- the fulfilment of our legal obligations;
- national security or national defence security;
- public security, public health, or major public interests;
- criminal investigations, prosecutions, trials, or the execution of court rulings;

- where there is sufficient evidence to prove that you are ill-minded or abusing your rights;
 - where we can't respond to your request for the sake of protecting your or other individuals' lives or properties or major legitimate rights and interests, but it is very difficult for us to get your consent for this;
 - where responding to your request will cause serious damages to the legitimate rights and interests of yours or other individuals or organizations;
 - business secrets.
